ABOUT THE MUSEUM

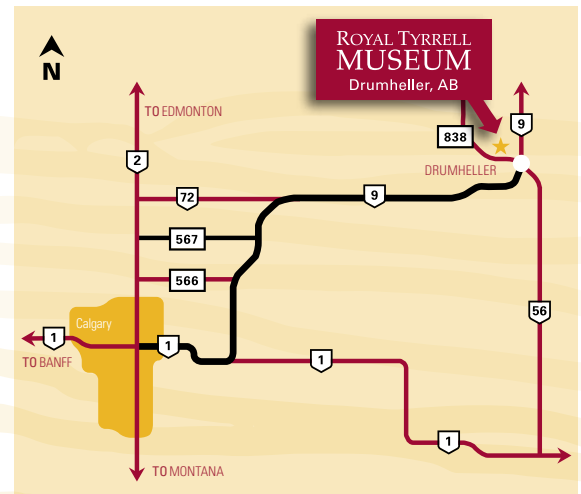

MUSEUM OVERVIEW

The Royal Tyrrell Museum of Palaeontology celebrates the spectacular diversity of life on Earth, from the tiniest grain of pollen to the mightiest dinosaur. This world-renowned museum and research facility is situated in the rugged Canadian Badlands, which offers some of the richest deposits of dinosaur fossils in the world and spectacular views.

Our mandate is to be an internationally recognized public and scientific museum dedicated to the collection, preservation, presentation, and interpretation of palaeontological history, with special reference to Alberta's rich fossil heritage.

THE MUSEUM:

- is situated in Midland Provincial Park, 6 km northwest of Drumheller, Alberta.
- is the only museum in Canada devoted exclusively to the science of palaeontology and has one of the biggest displays of dinosaur skeletons in the world.
- has welcomed over 13 million visitors from over 150 countries.
- has been voted one of the world's top dinosaur museums by CNN, National Geographic, USA Today, and Smithsonian Magazine several years in a row.
- is a designated Canadian Signature Experience by Destination Canada.
- is home to approximately 160,000 individual specimens, over 300 of which are holotypes (term used to describe an individual plant or animal that serves as the basis for the description of a species).
- adds thousands of specimens to its collection annually.
- spans over 835,000 sq. ft. of the Alberta badlands. The main building is 120,000 sq. ft., which includes 45,000 sq. ft. of exhibit space. The ATCO Tyrrell Learning Centre provides an additional 16,500 sq. ft. devoted to Educational Programming.
- In spring 2019, the new expansion space of the Museum opens. The space includes dedicated venues for hands-on activities that encourage exploration, multi-use rooms for meetings and school groups, additional outreach areas, and enhanced educational spaces.
- is operated by Alberta Culture and Tourism and generates the highest economic output of all Alberta Government heritage attractions.
