ABOUT THE MUSEUM

MUSEUM OVERVIEW

The Royal Tyrrell Museum of Palaeontology celebrates the spectacular diversity of life on Earth, from the tiniest grain of pollen to the mightiest dinosaur. This world-renowned museum and research facility is situated in the rugged Alberta badlands, which offer spectacular views and some of the richest deposits of dinosaur fossils in the world.

Our mandate is to be an internationally recognized public and scientific museum dedicated to the collection, preservation, protection, presentation, and interpretation of palaeontological history, with a particular emphasis on Alberta's rich fossil heritage.

THE MUSEUM:

- is situated in Midland Provincial Park, 6 km northwest of Drumheller, Alberta.
- is the only museum in Canada devoted exclusively to the science of palaeontology, and has one of the biggest displays of dinosaur skeletons in the world.
- has welcomed more than 13 million visitors from over 150 countries.
- has been voted one of the world's top dinosaur museums by CNN, National Geographic, USA Today, and Smithsonian Magazine several years in a row.
- is a designated Canadian Signature Experience by Destination Canada.
- is home to more than 160,000 individual specimens, over 300 of which are holotypes (an individual plant or animal that serves as the basis for the description of a species).
- adds thousands of specimens to its collection annually.
- spans over 77,500 m² (835,000 sq. ft.) of the Alberta badlands. The main building is 12,300 m² (132,500 sq. ft.), which includes spaces for exhibits, educational programming, outreach activities, and hands-on exploration.
- is operated by Alberta Culture, Multiculturalism and Status of Women and generates the highest economic output of all Alberta Government heritage attractions.
